Regarded as the flagship of the Talisman franchise, Talisman now introduces a brand new era of adventure in the Age of Steam, full of danger and intrigue. After a single night, the blood moon blots out the sun, and the land grows dark. In this night, something stirs beneath the earth that will only be defeated by the mightiest of adventurers. Talisman: The Blood Moon expansion adds more magic and treachery to this epic journey, expanding the range of options for Talisman players and bringing new stories to life. PRATO, Italy (Reuters) - When the world's nuclear regulatory agencies make safety recommendations, they can be downright annoying - like all those annoying little messages you get from your cellphone company. This is especially the case when the agency in question is the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), which advises non-nuclear nations about the safety of nuclear technology. If you get an IAEA letter reading "We do not believe an accident could be catastrophic", and you're puzzled as to why, it probably means the organization is expressing confidence that a worst-case nuclear accident (such as one involving the loss of reactor criticality and resulting in an uncontrolled chain reaction) is unlikely. The findings themselves aren't necessarily a problem, although they usually are. What is a problem is the IAEA's decidedly unhelpful style. This can be an aggravation in some cases but for others it's actually a fairly crucial factor affecting their decision-making. So how can you make sense of it? Here's a somewhat roundabout method, using examples from the current accident in Japan to explain the IAEA's point of view. In general, the IAEA's goal is to hold member countries to the safety standards set by the Nuclear Regulations Treaty. They use a variety of options, from recommendations to demands, or even sanctions for those countries that don't comply. The IAEA's risk-assessment process can take three basic forms. It can issue a generic "recommendation", a "concurrence", or a "decision". In the case of a "

Ask HN: News: Which cloud platform? - rubin_sanders I'm looking at building a new service on a niche market I know. I'm torn between Heroku and Google App Engine. Thoughts? ===== maxbrown I think you're going to get a lot of mileage from something like Heroku, if you're developing for a platform of people who really want simple. If you're dealing with something more enterprising, Google App Engine is definitely the way to go. For what it's worth, I think AWS is making a concerted effort to get into the cloud-hosting market. They've got a build-your-own pricing structure, a hosted S3-type service, and a hosted database service at $10/month. The OK hand sign is being used by the opposition in the UK for the first time as members of the Conservative Party protest against leader David Cameron for signing up to a pledge in support of same sex marriage. The opposition leader, Nick Clegg, says the use of the hand signal shows the "care" the Prime Minister is showing for the issue. Nick Clegg - who is seen as a rival to David Cameron in the party leadership - said the gesture was an "extraordinary piece of political theatre" which would be "very good for our opponents" in the referendum. But the sign's deeper meaning for the Conservatives is not clear. The gesture was apparently the weapon used by Sid James in the 1980s TV comedy 'Only Fools and Horses' when he was trying to "cram" a book he was writing. LONDON (AP) - After more than a decade of rising tensions over Europe, the chances of Britain taking part in the euro have come down to inches. Britain must get the right-wing bloc of member states in the European Union to agree to hold a second referendum on the euro next month, or risk a full-blown financial crisis within a matter plays is going to be felt on a global scale that people could never have imagined or even dreamed of. The globalists already have world-wide power and are relying on the power of the people to "cooperate" with them. They are going to devastate this nation as a warning to all the nations which may resist. The Bible says they hate the USA and will do anything to destroy the USA. This is a warning to all the world and especially to America. The white house is in exile and their goal is to flee and hide and not to intervene with what is going on. As the Globalist report, nothing will be left standing when they are finished...that is OUR warning. We are to help defend America from their onslaught. Posters have been popping up on non-white cities all over America with the same message. They say, "When you see destruction, know that it is the work of the Globalists so that they can appear as saviors!" Americans are being told by Globalist secret societies that they are not mentally prepared for war and that they will have visions and hear strange noises when the time comes for war. All these warnings are meant to cause you to be prepared by learning Bible prophecy and being ready for the battle when it comes. All the warnings about the great tribulation tell us that this will begin soon and that Americans should be prepared for war. The warnings are about any and all wars. Christians will be called to war but others will be manipulated into seeing others as the enemy and war will be justified against them. In America, just before 9/11/01, Rumsfeld identified the enemy as, “This administration is at war, and we are winning the war against radical Islamic terrorism.” “Rumsfeld looked as if he wished it were the other way around. ‘We need some evidence that the Americans are winning the war,’ he told me. ‘Somebody’s got to get a report out of the intelligence services someday. What comes back can be as important as how you bring it back.’” ON 9/11 A REVOLUTION WILL BE CREATED IN AMERICA AND OVER THE WORLD BIN LADEN...(WHO NEVER EXISTED....) In January 2018, Jody (Sarena) was diagnosed with a rare form of bone cancer. She was given a palliative bone marrow transplant, and in May 2018, Jody's condition turned for the worse. She was placed on a ventilator and received intensive chemotherapy. On August 8, 2018, after being in and out of the hospital for six months, Jody passed away. In the months since, she has been surrounded by thousands of messages of love and support. On August 15, 2018, Jody's family asked that we feature a video of her daughter, Sarena, reacting to her mother's death. In that video, Sarena tells us, "I still miss my mom." When we heard these words, we knew we had to honor Jody's incredible journey with a game. To honor a mother who never met her daughters, a daughter who could not love the mother who cared for her, and to honor the memories of one small girl and her very big family. Almost 4 years after the bone marrow transplant (since the most recent surgery was May 2018), and 4 years since a very sick little girl made her mother's death real and her family's journey real, on July 20, 2020, in the year of Jody's 41st birthday, the most improbable coincidence of all: the California Supreme Court ruled that AB258, which had been in limbo since 2015, allowing the state to implement a smoking ban in hospitals, is now the law of the land. A few days ago, the Supreme Court ordered the judge who has been blocking the ban to decide on the matter of standing or the final execution of AB258, giving the order on June 2, 2020. So, on August 20, 2020, at the age of 41 and almost 4 years after the transplant, Jody had her last surgery. You will never know the true power of love until it is tested in ways you never thought possible. Thousands of people are making this happen and dream of the day this lives, actually happens. Our dream is to put out this dream in the form of a game. A game that would let a mother remember her mother - a daughter remember her mother. A game that lets you speak out against the small injustices that are always present. And a game that lets you tell the story of a daughter and a mother's shared life
