TOSHIBO.JP: The best fantasy action RPG game out there. I have 60 hours into this and every one of those hours has been spent wisely. I love the sense of exploration and discovery. Especially the discovery of new races. So far I have found half-elves, humans, dwarves, orcs, goblins and ogres. Each with their unique look and feel. And their own set of skills. Though some of these races(Orc e.g.) are based off those in our world but others are not. Their race was fully formed from the beginning. All the races are unique in their own way. Another thing I love, is even though it looks like a hack'n'slash, there is no such thing here, try as I may, you can't get me. I like the fact that its hard but fair even on the first run. It's like 2d WoW. On the harder difficulties however, you will lose spells but that's it. All the life devouring trophies, things that look like a boss but are take turns that makes your patience

The aesthetics of the breast are still largely overlooked by the plastic surgery profession. Breast augmentation for the mother after pregnancy has been done primarily by implantation of cohesive silicone gel. We present a new technique for the "suspension" of the breast, using the lesser and greater omentum. Over a 2-year period, 6 of 8 patients undergoing mammoplasty, after a median of 4-5 years since delivery, had successful results. The breast mound, shaped as a sphere and anchored to the midaxillary line, had a soft contour, and was aesthetically acceptable to all patients. There was only one problem, which was an inability to achieve an optimal result in one patient. The technique has been refined and continues to provide a more aesthetic result. By shaping the breast mound and manipulating the omental flaps, we have been able to
