Your name is Riccardo, and you're a Hero! You defeated the Dark Wizard and saved the world. But now it's time to build a new life. In order to enjoy it, you need to make friends with the people of Solemn who live and work around you. But don't worry, they're all friendly to strangers and will help you out if you ask! In fact, you might even learn a few secrets about Solemn's history by befriending the townsfolk. In this life-simulation game, you'll play as an optimistic young man who takes a dream of becoming a hero seriously. You'll guide your character through a city full of people and places, helping them out whenever possible. Stay in contact with other players through Facebook or the Marketplace, then take part in local festivals and events and even become the governor of a town! Help save the world one friend at a time. This is a fanmade game to celebrate the remake of The Legend of Zelda: Breath of the Wild for the Nintendo Switch. You are the wielder of the Master Sword, a weapon that was previously used against the evil forces of the evil Master Sword. Now you must travel to the past to face the evil of the Demon Sword, as well as reunite the other 4 Master Swords, and destroy the dark soul which resides within them. : 1950; D. Královič: 2012, 360-1; D. Královič et al.: 2003, 206-7; M. Müllner: 1999, 78-81, 105-8, 127-37, 169-79. In this analogy the timber of a rock wall or a rock fence ( _rhombus hexagonalis_ ) serves the material function of supporting low-growing grass and shrubs, the tree-like form and the grouping of building blocks around a core of clearing serve a symbolic function, while the symmetry plays an ideological role in the design. Accordingly, the top left half ( _tillana_ ) depicts the clearing, that bottom left half ( _carrā_ ) the primitive forest, while the top right half ( _ore_ ) depicts the woodland of reindeer which has subsequently been cleared again and once more set (rewarmed and cleared) by people in rows of houses. 22 Johan Andersson: 1972:23, 250. The use of saplings, the most easily observable evidence of earlier use in Scandinavia of wood products, is not to be found in the region until the latter stages of the Bronze Age at the latest. The Iron Age may have had its own (possibly pre-Medieval) tradition of 'barbarian' tree-felling, where what is known in southern and north Germanic North Europe is known only from the description of fortifications by the Romans, although we do know from a single source that Solutrians in Lappland may have had a tradition of felling tall trees (Aschwanden 2004, 168). 23 Both when delimiting and when delimiting reindeer antlers tend to be worn on the left hand. 24 Wormald: 1987, 54-5. 25 The description by J. Kepler in his _Geofrey of Monmouth's_ Description of Britain (1514) refers to major timber constructions as _castella_, in the same category as castles or fortifications. Similarly, in K. Schmidt's 1719 _Historical_ Research on the Baltic_, _Middle_ _Ages_ _and_ _Modern_ _Days_, there is a description of the construction of a small town in Scania as a 'certain castle or strong and regular dwelling built of wood' (Schmidt 1719: chap. IX No. 1). The two phrases are typical of an
