Railroad Corporation's latest offering is a complex strategy game based on the epidemic of yellow fever in the United States in 1853, which makes it one of the most unusual strategy titles to be released in recent years. Players can take on the role of mayors and businessmen, and build a railroad network capable of delivering medicine and supplies to besieged cities. The railroad line will have to be constructed in a logical manner to follow routes and avoid legal and other obstacles. The game contains more than 60 locations across the United States, which can be viewed from different angles. There are two different scenarios where yellow fever causes chaos. In the first scenario, the disease begins in the small town of Peoria, and there are no reinforcements available. In the second scenario, the disease begins in New Orleans and quickly spreads to cities on the Mississippi River, and to Savannah, Georgia. In each scenario, players will have to build their railroad network while facing an epidemic and other challenges. In addition, they will need to prepare their best players for the forthcoming online multiplayer battles.
