Three students offer a completely candid student perspective on every aspect of law school, from classmates to bar certification and drafting to study abroad. This book is for those who have trouble assessing in the legal field, who are frustrated by the need to learn by doing, and who feel they can use law school for other purposes. This book is not just a collection of original recipes, but also a practical guide that will help you learn how to cook meals for the whole family on your own. All recipes are adapted for cooking at home. Particular attention is paid to the rules of serving and decoration.
