<READ [PDF]] Epidemiology in Medicine written by Charles H. Hennekens in English... Summary: Epidemiology is the simplest and most direct method of study... In the past, depending on the country , a more or less specialized way of registering diseases was used. Currently, for countries with a high level of development, there is the World Health Organization. In countries where such an organization does not exist, epidemiological studies (as well as studies in general) have not always been sufficiently clear. Over the past decades, incidence data have been derived from systematic reviews.
